

3-2-1 Reflection

3

1. A syllabus is key. It relieves anxiety of students, parents, and teachers at the same time.
2. Discussions are possible at the middle school level. They just need to be voluntary and monitored closely.
3. How important it is for students to still be able to communicate digitally. Even if students are not with their classmates, they should still have the opportunity to do so.

2

1. Discussions will work better than I think. Students are excited to participate in the discussion with their classmates. I just have to make sure that I am giving them the opportunity to do so.
2. Rolling content out at once can be overwhelming and relieving to students. I need to know my students so that I am able to assign work and material in a way that works better for each individual student.

1

1. What is more beneficial for students? Assigning all of the work up front so students can work at their own pace? Or presenting material day-by-day so that it does not overwhelm students?